

New study program @ Department of Linguistics

Starting in the Fall 2023, a new undergraduate program will enter into effect. All students will enroll as students of a single linguistics program. After they complete their first year of studies, they choose their focus/specialization. The two specializations are “generative” and “functionalist” (the students will learn about these during their first year of studies). Below is a list of some of the main courses and requirements, which should give you an idea of what the studies are like. Please see the website in the summer for full details.

First year of studies (these are obligatory)

Courses
Introduction to linguistics
Typology
Language in context
Structure & Meaning
Morphology

Generative focus (for illustration purposes)

Some of the courses are obligatory, some of them are elective.

Courses
Syntax
Semantics
Language & Cognition
Advanced syntax and semantics
Lexical semantics A
Lexical semantics B
Readings in generative linguistics
Corpus linguistics
Pragmatics
Sentence Processing
Sapir-Whorf (Language, Culture and Thought)

Functionalist focus (for illustration purposes)

Some of the courses are obligatory, some of them are elective.

Course
Ancient languages
Language structures A1
Language structures B1
Advanced investigations A2
Advanced investigations B2
Language structures C
Historical linguistics
Comparative linguistics and phylogenetic methods
Syntactic analysis
Topics in syntactic structures
Conversation analysis
Narrative analysis
Discourse, conversation and chat
Topics in linguistic typology
Corpus linguistics
Quantitative methods

Please check the website in the summer for more details or contact the departmental BA advisors. Furthermore, the prospective students will be contacted by our student followers:

Sofiya Efremov <sofiya.efremov@mail.huji.ac.il>

Itamar Folman <itamar.folman@mail.huji.ac.il>